McCormick's Reaper & Mower. HIGHLY IMPROVED FOR 1860.—Con-structed from the first on correct principles, it has always been eminently successful, and with its present improvements fully meeting all the requirements of the age.

it abio defles all compelition. Farmers who may desire it are at liberty to work one of these Machines through the harvest with any other, and keep and pay for the one

The Machine is now perfectly balanced, not leaving a pound weight on the horses' neck its execution in Reaping and Mowing, it hoth wet and dry, is perfect; it cuts the wi dest swath, and as now made, with the lightes draft of any Machine now in use. It is so constructed that the labor of raking off is very much lightened, a castor wheel, on an entire new principle, on the grain side, wholly relieves the horses from the pressure of the machine from strain in turning, and is so ar ranged that the cutting bar is completely and casily thrown over obstructions while in motion by the driver, without the use of levers and complicated machinery. A very decided and important feature in its improvement consists in its perfect arrangement for sepa rating and cleaning the track in mowing. It is the most simple, most substantial most durable, and in every way the most complece and reliable Reapor and Mower in the world, and as such is Warranted.

The Two-Horse Machine (with easy draft for two horses), cuts a swath 51 feet wide, and the Four-Horse Machine a foot wider .-For particulars address SAMUEL BRANDT,

THE PRAYERLESS ONE He never prays! The God of heaven has watched O'er all his steps, and with that tureful eye Which never sleeps, has guarded him from death, And shielded him from danger. Through the hours, Has guarded all his footstops o'er the wild And thorny paths of life, and led him on In safety through them all. In later dars, Still the same hand has ever been his guard .... From dangers seen and unseen. Clouds have lowered, And tempests of have burst above his bead. But that protecting hand has warded off it The thunder-strokes of death; and still he stands A monument of mercy. Years have passed, Of varied dangers and of varied guilt, But still the sheltering wings of love have been Outspread in mercy o'er him. He hath walked And skies, and stars, and the magnificence. Of mighty waters, and the warning voice That speaks amid the tempest, and the notes Of softer tone that float on evening winds-All these have told him of a God who claims And viewed them in their glory as they stood, The workmanship of God; and there has breathed Around him, even from infancy, a voice That told of mercy bending o'er him With looks of angel sweetness-and of power Resistless to its goings forth-but stayed -By that scraphic mercy still be stands. Cold and unfeeling as the rock that braves ;

He never praye! A lonely wanderer cast On life's wild thorny desert, urging on His heedless steps through many a secret snars And many a danger. Darkness closes round His dubious bath, save here and there a ray That filts along the gloom; but still be seems From some bewildered meteor of the night To ask for guidance and direction still. . Y

The occas billows: still he never prays!

He never prays-Earth's many voices rend their songs Of grateful praise up to the throne Of the Eteroph-morning, noon, and night, On every side around him, swell the notes Of adoration, gratitude, and joy; The lake, the grove, the valley, and the hill, Swell the loud chorus - and some happy hearts, Redeemed from error and restored to peace, And blest communion with the Holy one, Jolu in the glad, the humble, blissful strain; But still be never praye!

Her solemn shades around blue, and the world Grows dim upon his eye, and many stars Scattered in glory o'er the rault of heaven, Call on the spirit to retire awhile From earth and its low vanities, and seek The high and holy intercourse with God When morning kindles in the eastern sky, With all its radiant glory, and the sun-Comes up in majesty, and ver the earth. Wakes all her tribes to busy life, And breaks the death-like solitude that reigned Erewhile o'er Naturo's face; when on his eva-Earth smiles in beauty meath the lucid ray, And feathered songsters pour their strains of jo Upon his ear; still not a note of praise Or humble prayer arises from his lips; Morn after morn returns in all its sweet And peaceful leveliness, and oft invites His spirit to commune with God ; but still He sourns the offer-still he never prays!

Short is the dream of Life. Its days of cure, Its hours of pleasure, soon will pass away; And on the wandering eye shall bour the broad Uncensing splendor of Eternity, Oh, when the scenes of Life have fided all Like morning visions, and my spirit istands Before the Judgment Throne, and finds its deeds And words and thoughts all registered in heaven,

I should say that sound common sense was the principal quality of his mind at hough at times a striking phrase or word reveals a peculiar vein of thought He tells a story well, with a strong idiomatic smack, and seems to relish humor both in himself and others. Our conversation was mainly political, but of a general nature. One thing Mr. Lincoln remarked which I will we uture to repeat. He said thatain the coming Presidential canvass he was wholly uncommitted to any cabals or cliques, and that he meant to keep himself free from them, and from all pledges and promises had the pleasure, also, of a brief interview with Mrs. Lincoln, and, in the circumstances of these persons, I trust I am not trespassing on the sunctities of private life in saying a word in regard to that lady. We copy from the Chicago Press & Tribune, the following which we commend to the attention of honest men of all parties who wish an opportunity of voting for a man of the old school of politicians. Every day is developing some new point of character in ARRAM LINCOLN total loved and

We refer to one matter with pride and congratulation. Mr. Lincoln has, by his own motion, never been a candidate for President of the United States; hence he has no pledges to redeem, no promises to make good. The uprising in his favor has been spontaneous—the outgrowth of widespread conviction of his fitness and availability. It has not embarrassed his future action. It has laid no clogs upon the free exercise of his judgment in all matters which concern the public good. It has not been the work of chiques, or factions, by and by to seek their reward He goes into the Presidential Chair, clean-handed and pure; and, when President, his distribution of the patronage will be governed by the wants and exigencies of the public service, and not by the loud clamors of men who urge their claims upon the ground of past support. That during the past week, in which there have been such temptations to lead him into the practices which are unfortunately so common with politicians of not specifically direct him to apply money to less rectitude, he has in terms of just indignation refused all offers of votes which were based upon promises of future rewards, we have reason to know. WITH THE SPIRIT RECOMING AN HONEST MAN HE REJECTED THEM ALL.

THE ATLANTIC CABLE.—The Boston Transcript learns from parties interested in the enterprise, that some fifty miles of the Atlantic cable have been taken up, from a point extending seaward from the shores of Trinity Bay, and that fractures were found in the cable just where they had been indicated by the instruments on shore. The intention is to underrun a similar length of the wires on the European side, and it is thought by the sanguine promoters of ocean telegraphing that then the Atlantic cable will be made to work.

THE RECEPTION OF THE PRINCE OF WALES AT QUEEEC .- The Quebec Chronicle says that the new Parliament House is to be converted into a temporary palace for the Prince of Wales; that "new furniture is to be put in. Kitchens, cooking utensils. beds, bedding, dining tables, sideboards, pianos, and the full accessories of a wellfurnished house, are to take the place of desks and office stools, and there is to be an unheaving of things in general." All this for a boy of 18, who could, without the least impropriety, take his "grub" at the table d'hote, sleep in a hotel room, and behave himself as any other decent gentleman should do.

· THE HEALTH OF THE POPE.—The London Star has a letter dated Paris, May 7th, containing the following:

The most mysterious and alarming accounts reached here yesterday concerning the health of the Pope. It is whispered that his Holiness has been in the habit of taking small doses of strychnine, much prescribed by Italian doctors for producing a saliutary degree of mental excitement, requisite for the endurance of the increased Red Wheat amount of mental labor he had to undergo during the last few months. A private letter, received yesterday, says that the change in the appearance of Pius IX. is evident to all. His head is bent and his eve fixed and dim. In raising his hand to bestow his benediction on the people, it was observed to shake as if with palsy.

ANOTHER VICTIM .- The Pittsburg Gazette states that Charles Higby, late postmaster at New Brighton, Beaver county, Pa., recently became crazy from the effects of spiritualism. He embraced the delusion some years ago, and became gradually more infatuated, until a few weeks since, when his mind gave way. He was taken to an insane asylum, where he has since died.

FAMILY MEDICINES A RE the only preparations of the kind placed before the public under the name of Ecceptic. They are called Eclectic because they are carefully and scientifically selected—the BEST from all the COOD-and approved by the most scientific men in the United States. They do not contain any Mercury, Antimony, or Opium, or anything that would be deleterious to the most delicate constitution.

All who understand the curing of disease know that medicines only assist nature, and knowledge of these facts causes many of our fellow citizens to go down to an untimely

I can therefore recommend this preparation with the utmost confidence, and am fully persuaded, from past experience at the bedside of the sick, that it will give very general, if not universal satisfaction. Yet, at the same time. I do not pretend to say that it is a cure-all, or that it is, in all eases and circomstances, infallible. For when a remedy is set forth as "Cure-All," "Infallible; &c., the conclusion with me is irresistible, that the proprietor himself believes his remedy to be a humbug, and designed from the start to deceive the public.
